We observe that in the trade circulars' published for the mail which left yesterday. stoppage of trade in T-Cloths and other imports, in consequence of the taxation imposed by the local mandarins at Pak-hoi, are conflicting. In one quarter it is stated that the difficulty has been settled to the satisfaction of the dealers, while other equally good authorities assert that the trouble still congoods. The matter, in fact, seems to stand difficulties of the kind among Chinese, in such the Chinese, and they thought did not add a way that we know only of their existence, and the best informed are unable completely to taken to repair some of the streets in Taipingfathom their causes. The subject, however, is one which ought to be investigated to the bottom, as- it is certainly a very-important Acting Registrar-General, acted as Interpreter. matter as bearing on the commercial interests of this Colony, that it is in the power of a local mandarin at Pak-hoi to put an end to the trade in the most important class of imports, by imposing an illegal, tax upon the traders. To some extent, no doubt, these matters will adjust themselves in time, as the Chinese, though theoretically abjectly submissive to their authorities, have a way of bringing very distinct pressure to bear upon them in such cases, but it is at the same, time well that the mercantile community of Hongkong should make its voice heard in such matters, as by that emcans they strengthen the native traders to some extent in their opposition to the exactions. Hougkong is constantly subjected to restrictions of this kind; and unfortunately. it seems impossible for the mercantile com munity to ascertain with any exactness the kicking him, because he owed defendant 50 modus operandi by which this is effected, cents, and was unable to pay the last two The recent difficulty, however, ought to make it apparent how necessary it is for them to fendant was fined 25 cents. keep a watchful eye over such matters, and to place themselves in a position to obtain is to become the sport of the local officials gambling by lamplight, in front of the Tungon the mainland, it will soon become im-

As the time for the annual granting of spirit dicences is approaching, it may not be out of phice to make one or two remarks upon some of the lower class houses in what is termed "Sailors' Town." It is a subject of general complaint among these low houses that times are bad; but netwithstanding this, if had to rush out of the way. the names of the persons who really get out the licences were known, it would appear that in some instances one man owned two crowd of chairs in front, and it was impossible houses, and had shares in others, and that here were links between houses which to the outsider seem quite independent of one another, while in other cases the liquor shops are connected with sailors' boarding-houses. It is evident, therefore, that times are not defendant on his ability to drive three horses. quite so bad as they are represented, or the proprietors of houses could not get on well as they do. The profits made are enormous, and the cases which come before the Police-Court show only too clearly the results of this, so far as "Poor Jack" is concerned. He comes ashere with $5,810,820 or perhaps in some cases $50 ; and has not been ashore half an hour when he is picked up dead, or stupidly, drunk; from the effects of brought up and fined. the abominable poison be has been imbibling. and next day be figures at the Police Court without a fraction to pay his fine. There can, therefore, be no reason for offering of Mesers. Vogel, Hagedorn & Co., came on racilities to houses of this description, and it the times being bad should result in some of dealer, consequently he preferred a charge them being closed up, this would surely be against him on that score. The coolies on so much the better, as being at all events so ployed on the S. S. If our information as to pioule; this they sold to a street hawker. more houses than one being owned by a real proprietor in the background is correct, the matter ought to be carefully enguired into. as it is precisely against the spread of large number of small houses that it is the policy of the Magistrates to guard.

A valuable account of one of the Chinese 'Hwais," discovered in San Francisco-institutions, which are established in every place where Chinamen congregate, except Hongkong, (at loast so-our authorities fully believe)-is given elsewhere from the columns of the Spectator. It affords an interesting insight. into a phase of Chinese life, which is now sufficiently notorious, but in which those in official positions seem very loath to-believe.

A deputation, consisting of the members of be Tungwa Hospital Committee, waited yesterday upon H.E. the Governor, by appointment, to give their views with reference to certain matters connected with the government of the native population in the Colony, The first mattertaken under consideration was the large number of female children which are taken to the orphanages and foundling institutions in the Colony. His Excellency's attention had been incoled to the fact that by far the larger num-per of the children brought to these institutions were idmale, and were often in a maribund condi-The deputation expressed an opinion that the children were for the most part purchased in Canton, and when it was found in any onse that they had sickened, and got into a bad way, they were taken to the asylums. The next subject of discussion was that of the numerous suicides by the use of opium; which had of late taken-place, and the uccessity or devising some means of applying proper renedies at once in such cases. It appears that the medicines which ignorant Chinese doctors use, are in many cases themselves of a poisouous character, and are unsuited as remedies... The. the accounts given with reference to the deputation suggested that it would be desirable that notices should be posted setting forth the best Chinese and also the best foreign remedies, and that people should be recommended to use them in all cases and take the sufferers as speedily as possible to the Tung-wa Hospital The deputation took occasion to express the strong views entertained by the Chinese against post-morten examinations, and a hope that her would be resorted to only in cases of pressing necessity. In many instances of poisoning timues, and that it is the cause of the present from opinm, the facts were sufficiently apparent dead lock in trade to natives in Cotton piece without resorting to post mortem examinations. It is with regret, but with no surprise, that we find that the Chinese immigrants to the United States are likely to have their hard lot made harder through their incorrigible vice of establishing "Hoeys," or scoret societies, administered under penulty of assassination—the raly ponaity which is really effective in a sectsociety in whatever quarter of the glob Chinamen congregate to any considerable extent. The Chinese population in the 'United States as in the Australian Colonies, is remarkable for its exemplary industry, ingenuity, sobriety, and patience in the discharge of list of occupations which is growing wider and more miscelfancous every day. The question-which reveals the worst side of the "Heathen Chines" the woman-question, namely, was at the bottom of the matter. Up to very recently, no Chinese women at all were included among the emigrante from the Celestial Empire; but of late the bar set by Chinese opinion against female emigration has begun to be raised, and a few weeks ago we read of a cargo of three bundred women and girls being disposed of by public juction in the Chinese quarter of San Franoisco. What is the fate of some at least of these Chinawomen may be gathered from our narrative. On the 18th of June last, the chief of the San Francisco police received a letter, dated the preceding day, from "734, Pacificpeculiarly Chinese. The letter purported to be

DANGEROUS COSMETICS

In a paper read to the Paris Academy of edicine, the necessity is argued of preventing perfumers from selling poisonous or dangerous articles, which should be left exclusively to the responsibility of regular chemists, and not sold without a physician's prescription. Arsenic, the acid nitrate of mercucy, tartar emetic, canthurides, colchicum, and potassa caustica, are common ingredients in these cosmetics. The so-called lettuce soap does not contain the slightest trace of lettuce; and this and other soaps are coloured by the sesquioxide of chrominm, or of a rose colour by the sulphuret of mercury, known as vermilion. The chemer soups contain thirty per cent, of insoluble matter, as lime or plaster; while others contain animal nitrogenous matter which, having escaped the process of saponification, emits a bad odour when its solution is left exposed to the in. The various toilette vinegars are also declared in this paper to be so far noxious that, being applied to the skin still impregnated with som and water, they give rise to a decomposition, in consequence of which the fatty acids of soup, being insoluble in water, and not remove by washing, became raneid, and cause chronic. nflammation of the skin.

INTERNATIONALISTS COME TO GRIEF. Speciator, September 6th

The Internationalists seem to have come to day, only one of their original leaders was present, Jaques Guillaume, the remainder being dead, changed in their opinions, or become too prosperous to care about Internation. alism. Like the St. Simonians, the Internationalists seem to have a faculty for getting on in of the Roman plebs after their long struggle with the patricians, and of the Danish prole-

THE TICHBORNE TRIAL. (Telegraph.)

NINETY-FIRST DAY 3-9TH SEPTEMBER. As we anticipated, yesterday's proceedings. commenced with a vigorous complaint on the Treasury in issuing on the 8th of the present the faith of the Treasury promise, arrange-

De. good-natured cross-examination by Mr. Hawfendant had no need of a secretary, and young kins fuiled in any way to shake the general Butts was not fit to be a scoretary. Still wit. tenor of Mr. Howlestone's evidence, and Dr. ness didn't think this odd-didn't, in fact, think | Kenealy re-examined his witness with a anything odd. Had lived too long in the world. Didn't think it odd that as soon as Sir Roger landed in England he should, as Americans say, fresh-complexioned lady, known in the days of "go under" for a while. Didn't think it odd her maidenhood as "the pretty laundrees of that he (witness) should be suddenly summoned Bath." She "did for" Roger while he was at to Alresford by telegram. What was more, Upton, and repeated the evidence she gave at didn't think it odd that there should be five the last trial, as to the patterns upon his funcy hundred people waiting on the platform to abirts, and the fact that he remembered them, meet him, and that they should cry, " Brave ! Bogle," In short, taken one by one over all the curious difficulties in the defendant's career the difficulties which have forced Dr. Kenealy to describe his client us a man of mystery and , not as other men are—an enigma, a sphinx incarnato, a man not to be judged at by mathematical rules-in all this Mr. Andrew Bogle saw | for past days, whon she was "the pretty launnothing odd. For him the formula of the Attorney-General, "Should you be surprised to able pride, and she told the jury what a nice hear would have been meaningless. He affable young gentlemin Roger was, and how would be surprised to bear nothing. Much as many chats she had had with him, taking at Mr. Baigent accounted for everything by say. the same time especial care to explain that she ing that it was "exactly like Roger," so Mr. had never for a moment been alone in his com-Bogle, from first to last, stolidly denied that pany. Her anxiety to bring this point clearly there was anything whatever which had to be accounted for.

As for the fact that he had not "couched the defendant up, of that he was certain. The well-known memorandum was read to him. Doughty Valet brought from Tichborne with him. It bear the Doughty and Tichborne crest. name is Rangle, and is now living with me. Ite likewise has too woodout of Upton, a seat my uncle bought in Dorsetskire, and likewise my uncle likeness. I have them in my possession now to get them copied. Has you have t doublit of my idenity I will send you a copie of my uncle likeness. When you see the one you will see the other I mean myself." All the inferences which Mr. Hawkins skilfully sought to: draw from this interesting document the witnoss denied point blank. He had been into l'ichborne House, he admitted, and he had noticed the alterations that had been made in sit. But he had not done so for the purpose of perfeeting the Claimant in his story. Indeed, he had seen very little of the Claimant. Had been a accond-class passenger from Sydney to Panama, and from Panamagto New York, and from New York to England, and so had seen actually nothing of Sir Roger during the whole of bis return voyage. In short, there was nothing to be got out of Mr. Bogle.

NINETY-SECOND DAY-SEPTEMBER 10TH. The proceedings of yesterday were for from speciates. If witnesses such as these are the "chance wit- nor just, nor calculated to pacify the public messes" to whom Dr. Kenesly alluded on mind." Tuesday last, it is not difficult to understand the marked manner in which the Lord Chief Justice on that occasion intimated his opinion of the value of their evidence. To do justice, however, to Mr. Harcourt, the solicitor for the defence, all yesterday's witnesses were not of this kind, and three of them gave evidence of the most vital nature.

The day's proceedings commenced with the On LONDON .re-examination of Bogle, who answered Dr. Kenealy's questions with his accustomed discretion, and cleared up one or two minor points in his cross-examination which would otherwise have remained somewhat obscure. Very grateful, indeed, did Mr. Bogle appear to leave the box; nor will he probably repeat, on the present occasion, the complaint he urged with reference to the last trial, that the value of his evidence was overlooked, and that he was " done away with all too soon." To bim succeeded Mrs. Burt-formerly Miss Coles—whose father, and after her father's death ber brothers, kept the mill at Cheriton. This lady bolds in the roll of witnesses for the defence, much the same array of evidence for the Crown, and her self-. in the box somewhat suggested memories of head at the defendant, and telling the jury the recreant Arthur to bereelf and her husband. The evidence commenced with the production of a couple of water-colour sketches of Clieriton Mill. The mill, it seems, is a water mill, close by the river's side. The banks are thickly China Fire Insurance Company's Shares-$132 wooded, and between the bank and the stream is a private path, entered by a latchet gate, and Victoria Fire Insurance Company's Sharescalled "the grotto," not because it is a grotto, but because it is profusely bordered and edged with rock work. We need hardly remind our readers of the story by the defendant of his relations with his cousin, Miss Kate Doughty, of the part which the old mill at Cheriton bears in the story, or of the difficulties as to dates are well known to any one who takes the least interest in the case. Nor need the fact be recalled that Lady Radeliffe has sworn most positively that she was never in her life alone with her cousin at the mill. Upon this point Mrs. Burt was asked by Dr. Kenesly to contra-dicathe evidence of her ladyship pointblack; and she told her tale in the most circumstantial manner, and without the least embarrassment Somewhere; she deposed, in the autumn of the year 1852—it must have been the autumn, because the sun was "on the decline," and the days were drawing in-she was standing, at about two in the afternoon, at the gate of the mill-house in her brother's company, when she saw Roger Tichborne and his consin setting.

together on the stile that leads from Tichborne to Cheritan. Her brother, who knew Roger well, called her attention to them. Leaving the stile they came down the path towards the grotto, opened the latchet-gate, and want in together. How long they remained there she did not know. They went in, and disappeared and she and her brother went into the mill

The brother is now dead, so that the story stands upon her own evidence alone. For the rest, Mrs. Burt also deposed to having met Roger and his cousin riding together unattended on the Bramsdean-road, and to her belief that the defendant is Roger Tichbornea belief derived at first from her brother, but since confirmed by an interview with the defendant, at which he had reminded her how he and, while out subbiting, accidentally shot ber brother's little dog. The fact that this interview only took place on Tuesday morning goes far to lessen the value of the recognition. But the tale so circumstantially told by Mrs. Burt about the mill is one the bearing of which upon the case it were idle to attempt to disguise. There is no room here for slips of memory, no possibiity of accoing that Mrs. Burt has been talked into the belief that she gaw a something of which she only knew by hearsay. She took the picture of the mill into her hand, and pointed out the place at which she and her brother stood, the stile on which Roger and his cousing met, the tree hy which they passed, the gate. by which they entered the grotto, and the tall trees by which the group itself is overshadowed. With evidence such as this there is no via media: It provokes the direct issue, "Yes " or "No." The excitement which Mrs. Burt's testimony caused died away in the peaceful flow of the tale told by Mr. James Howlestone of Poole. who in the year 1851 was in the employ of a Mr. Hopkins, farmer and grocer, in the pleasant little seaside town. No little e musement was caused by an adroit attempt on Dr. Kencaly's part to get out of this witness some hearany evidence confirmatory of the defendant's statement that the good people of Poole once wanted him to stand for the place. The attempt was eminently unsuccessful, as direct attempts to "get in" hearsay usually are. But the direct evidence which Mr. Howlestone had to give of facts within his own knowledge was peculiarly interesting. As shopman to Mr. Hopkins, he had it seems, bad two most unpleasant alternations with Mr. Roger Tichborne, the result of the last of LONDON AND PROVINCIAL MARINE which had been that he (witness) had been all but turned out of Mr. Hopkins' employment.

marked air of triumph.

The last witness, Mrs. Legge, was a observ. and also remembered the oironmstance of her finding his dog-whistle. She had seen Roger Tichborne repeatedly, and was quite certain that the defendant was he, and the simplicity and straightforwardness with which she gave her evidence made her one of the few " model" witnesses whom the case has yet produced. dress of Bath," she remembered with pardoninto relief was most amusing, while her obvious belief that no one but Roger Tichborne could possibly have told her the pattern on Roger lichborns's shirts was as marked as it was upon the last trial. The cross-examination of the good lady was briefly commenced, when the leave is taken from a book which my whole Court rose, and will be resumed this morning.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Lawful hollog explosion took place at Elliott's Bessive Iron Works, East Jarrow, about two miles from South Shields. The works were in full operation at the time. A boy named Kelly was picked up dead, and an engineman named David Gallopper was so seriously injured that he died shortly afterwards. Several others were very badly scalded and cut. Through the explosion, a cooper's shop and a sawmill adjoining were set on fire.

The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung of Bern has an article on the English pilgrimage to Paray-le-Monial. It says that the English Catholics have given proof neither of good sense nor of patriotism in allowing their names to be associated with the political-religious demonstrations at Paray-le-Monial, and adds that the English press, by an almost ununimous verdict of condemnation, has sufficiently characterized the movement. The Berlin paper proceeds to quote the conclusion of an article ir the Standard on the subject, observing that i is one of the sharpest lessons that have been inflicted on Archbishop Manning and his as-

NOR comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objectein machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are givon, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typo-graphy displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margine and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration. ### A STORM IN AFRICA

What an African storm is can be only un derstood by experience; the incessant roll ing of the thunder, the long downfall torrents of rain, are enough to shake the stoutest heart. And the worst of it was that we should have been very much puzzled to know how to get back, for we had completely lost our way; when, straining our eyes in every direction after the heavy storm. I luckily made out some smoke across the low underwood." We made for the point at once, and in a few-hundred yards reached an Arab little, or gon bi, at the edge of a narrow tivulet. Rancy a charcoal burner hovel; in the middle of it a few flaming logs; three or four Arabs asleep, an old women cropping close to the fire, a young Arab cutting up tobacco-leaves into strips two lean dogs-growling, and a swarthy child asleon upon a sheepskin. In this country. this is called a gourbi. - Cassell's Magazine for Beptember:

MARGARET MARY ALACOQUE, THE SAINT OF PARAY LE-MONIAL -(Sheffield Duily Telegraph.).

Duke of Norfolk, to the shrine of Margaret-Mary Alacoque, is attracting great attention. to take it. This He did, and placed in it His not only in England, but on the Continent of own adorable heart, where He showed it to Europe and in the United States of America. Such militidestations of the fendency of the age must not be overlooked by the press, and we agree fully with some remarks which an American paper has just made on this subject. We propose to lay before beloved, I give you a precious pledge of my our readers in two or three articles an account of the life of "the Blessed Margaret Mary," taken chiefly from a work by a member of the "Society of Jesus," which is based on an autobiography written by the saint herself at the request of her Director, Hather Rolin Margaret Alacoque was born 22nd July, 1647, at Terran, near Charolles, in the Province of Burgundy and the diocese Autum, her father being a judge and other-/ pany at correct rates, subject to a discount ofwise a man of respectable position. In the 20 per cent. life which she afterwards wrote, she says of her tender years that her sallies of childist vivacity were an intolerable torment to her because she felt they were displeasing to God "I felt constantly urged to repeat though! did not know the meaning of the words My God, I consecrate to Thee my purity I vow to Thee perpetual chastity." Even at this time her desire was, to go and bury herself in solitude. "I was kept back," she says. "by the fear of meeting men?" Queen of Virgins gave her perpetual proof of ber care. "I did not dare." she says, "to address myself to her Divine Son, but always addressed myself to her." At nine years of age, being than under the teaching of the Dames Urbanists at Charolles, she took her first Communion; and henceforth , bad no taste for childish pleasures. "The Spirit made me put myself in prayer, almost always prostrate on the ground, or kneeling on my bare knees, provided I was not seen. About this time she took a severe illness which kept her a-bed for four years, and the malady was such as to defy the physicians Then she made a vow to the Virgin that i cured she should be one of her daughters. The Virgin then took absolute charge of her. "It happened that one day," she writes, ". was seated while saying my rosary, when she presented herself before me and gave me the following rebuke, which I have never forgotten, though at that time I was young What; my daughter, is it possible that you should be so negligent in my service?' These words left such an impression that they have served me all my life." Having regained her health, she prayed secretly for two hours morn. I THE Attention of Shippers is called to the ing and night—but, says her brother Chrysostoin, conformed with charming modesty in other respects with the wishes of her mother and brothers. By watching and fasting she impaired her health, and brought on a pain in her side, which she would have concealed but that a sudden fall forced from her an exclamation by which her secret was known. Margaret recovered her health by making a Novena along with her mother; but soon after this time her mother seems to have - placed the household at the mercy of certain persons "little better than servants," who reduced both the mother and the daughter to a state "little better than that of captivity." In her own words, it was " state of continual war." When she went to the Sacrament of the Altar she was accused of going to meet a young man-though, she says, "I would rather have been torn to pleces than have even thought of it." She was sometimes even driven from the house in consequence of these disputes, and would remain in a corner of the garden or stable

Night and day she was subjected to these mortifications, but she felt that they were intended to make her resemble her Lord. who "was constantly present with her in some stage of his Passion." At this time her mother was taken with a distemper, which caused a swelling on her face to burst, and yet, by Divine inspiration the daughter waited upon her, and was made the means of healing the wounds without medicine, and "contrary to all human expectation." Yet it appears that the young Saint had still ins to deplore. "I had committed," she says, "great sins, for on one occasion, being in company with other young girls, I disguised myself during the time of Curnival from a foolish desire to please them. This has been to me a subject of sorrow and tears all my life, as also the faults I have committed in wearing the trappings of vanity. At eighteen years of age Margaret had still harder trial to undergo. She had great sweetness of disposition. "Many suitors presented themselves, and her mother was desirous that she should marry. She had vowed perpetual chastity, but her mother's tears were a terment to her, and an occasion of temptation by the devil, which caused her insupportable torture. When induced join in the aurusements provided for her she had no peace. When putting aside her dress at night the Lord appeared to her after his sconrging, and said that her vanities had reduced Him to that state. "In the grief which constrained me," she with cords full of knots, and I bound them so tight that I could hardly breathe or eat. I left those cords there so long that they buried themselves in the flesh, and I could not tear them from it without great violence and cruel pain. I did the same with little chains, which I fastened on my arms, and esuld only remove them by taking away. with them pieces of the flosh. I lay during ile lout from the land he had ruled so well; the night on a plank, or on knotty sticks which I placed in my bed, and afterwards I took the discipline." In spite of all this she was, when about twenty, strongly tempted to vield and enter the married state; but at length, stimulated by repreashes from the Lord, in which He reminded her how she had been vowed to Himself, her resolution prevailed, and she decided, finally, to adopt a religious life. She was divinely directed in her twenty-third year to enter the little monastery of Paray, which had been founded forty-five years before.

Having become a member of the Order of the Visitation and a Daughter of St. Francis of Sales, Margaret was trained to, cast off all -merely human affection, and to devote herself only to intercourse with her Divine Master. On the day of her Profession (November 6. 1672); she writes: "My Divine Lord was pleased to receive me as His spouse, in a manner I am unable to express; I will only say that He treated use as a spouse of Thabor." - Two years after this date came the great revelation of which Margaret Mary gives the following account :- " Being one day before the Blessed Sacrament, having at the time more leisure than usual, I found myself entirely invested with the Divine Presence, but so nowerfully that I lost all thought of myself and the place The length of all the coasts which form where I was, and abandoned myself to the to withdraw them from the abyse of perdition -and I have chosen thee as an abyss of ignornce and univerthiness for the accomplishment of this grand design, in order that all The English pilgrimage, headed by the may be done by Me." After this our Lord asked her for her heart. She begged of him
